Main Line Health Welcomes New Board Member

The Main Line Health Board of Governors welcomed its newest member, Mary Stengel Austen, president, CEO, and cofounder of Tierney Communications, in June.

Mary Stengel Austen, in addition to her leadership role at Tierney Communications, serves on several regional business and philanthropic boards, including a position as Vice Chair of The Bryn Mawr Rehabilitation Hospital Board.

Austen, a graduate of Lafayette College, has been recognized by Philadelphia Business Journal as one of the area's "Women of Distinction" and "40 under 40," and as one of Main Line Today's "People to Watch." She was also honored with City of Hope's Spirit of Life Award, which recognizes outstanding philanthropic commitment. City of Hope is a leading research and treatment center for cancer, diabetes and other life-threatening diseases.

The American Heart Association named Austen as the 2009 "Woman of Heart" honoree at Philadelphia's annual "Go Red for Women" luncheon. She lives in Radnor with her husband and five children.

8th Annual "Cruise for the Kids" Fundraiser

On Thursday, September 11 at 7 p.m., the Friends of Children's Crisis Treatment Center (CcTC) will set sail for the 8th annual "Cruise for the Kids" fundraiser presented by Brown Hill Development & The Goldenberg Group. Guests of this exciting, nautical-themed event will enjoy an evening of great food, live music and amazing raffle prizes while supporting the Friends of CcTC's efforts to raise money and awareness an important cause.

This year's "Cruise for the Kids" will take place aboard the Moshulu, located at Penn's Landing (401 S. Columbus Boulevard) where light fare and a premium open bar will be available. The evening will include live reggae music by Verdict, dancing and additional entertainment by DJ Lucas Rivera. Guests are encouraged to dress in casual cocktail attire.

Several ticket packages are available for this year's "Cruise for the Kids." General tickets are $80 per person. VIP tickets are available for $100 per person and include admission to "Cruise for the Kids," as well as an invitation to the exclusive VIP cocktail party prior to the main event. The Friends of CcTC receive a special ticket price of $60 per person. Parking is complimentary. To purchase tickets in advance, please visit www.cruiseforthekids.org or contact Jaime Pearlstine at 215-496-0707 ext. 1138. Tickets will also be available at the door the night of the event.

"We don't just want to raise money with this event," says event co-chair Jessica Abelson, "we also want to encourage local young professionals to get involved with an organization that has taken on the tremendous responsibility of helping this city's children move past awful circumstances."

The Friends of CcTC is a group of young professionals from the Philadelphia region dedicated to strengthening CcTC's mission through exciting and unique community events, activities and fundraisers. Contributions to the "Cruise for the Kids," the Friends' signature event, support the services CcTC provides to children and families in Philadelphia.
